KARIKARI COMMUNITY HALL

Have your say...

The Community Hall Committee has called a public meeting to be held at 7pm on Tuesday 18 November to seek the views of the community on how the Hall should be insured.

Our insurers have advised that there are two alternatives for how the Hall can be insured going forwards:

1. Full replacement cost, or
2. Insurance based on a lesser level of cover

What is the difference?

It means that should the hall be lost in a disaster, such as a fire, full replacement would mean that an insurance policy would cover the building of a complete replacement for the existing hall.

The alternative would mean cover for a significant chunk of a replacement but the community would need to fund raise for most of the cost of replacement. This could take years, with no guarantee how much would be contributed by Far North District Council or any other donor, if at all.

It should not surprise that full replacement insurance is much more expensive, and would amount to a significant proportion of the total available funds of the Hall Committee in the future. Once the Hall Committee is registered as an incorporated society it may have more fund raising options to cover the insurance cost, but nothing is guaranteed.

Accordingly, the Committee and its insurers believe that it is essential to know what the views of the community are before making any commitment for the cost of insurance.

Let's have a serious, informed discussion.

Zumba Glow evening 2025

'Zumba Glow 2025' was inspired by members of our local ratepayers committee and gave attendants the opportunity to see what goes on in the small, yet busy community of Whatuwhiwhi.

It also raised funds for local service groups including the Hall, CCTV and the Man Shed on Simon Ulrich Road (photo of groups below).

Prizes were awarded accordingly by guest instructors and positive feedback was received from attendees on social media.

This event was made possible with the support of:

- The Hall Committee (Venue)
- Far North Zumba (Instructors)
- Ngāti Kahu Station Trust (Prize Sponsor)
- Noel Leeming Kaitaia (Prize Sponsor)

The unseen danger of sand caves (a reminder with summer coming)

Did you know ... that a cubic metre of sand weighs between 1.5 and 2 tonnes?

Dry sand weighs less than wet sand. At 1.5 tonnes, a cubic metre of dry sand is the same weight as a typical family car, a hippopotamus or an average sized great white shark. At 2 tonnes, a cubic metre of wet sand is the same weight as a white rhinoceros, a small tractor or a double cab ute.

This photo shows what a square meter looks like. It isn't very big is it? So imagine the same shape in the dune – and you have up to 2 tonnes of sand sitting above the cave.

Sand caves not only damage sand dunes, but they put lives at risk when they collapse. Wet sand caves can give the illusion of structural integrity and therefore being safe. However, there is no safe sand cave. As sand dries it gets weaker and any sand cave can collapse without warning.

And, of course, when a sand cave collapses that part of the dune collapses as well. For those of us living by the beach, those fragile dunes are our first line of defence against the ocean.

But there is one thing we know for sure: every hole will collapse sooner or later, and the dune around it will follow. Teach your kids and ask any visitors to respect our dunes.

Marriages are a happy occasion!

However, it is important that anyone who is getting married, or entering into a civil union needs to know that unless the person has made a will in contemplation of the marriage or civil union, the marriage or civil union will revoke the will. This occurs due to the provision of section 18 of the Wills Act 2007.

Where a will is revoked the Administration Act 1969 determines how the assets are distributed on death.

How about some history of our area

“Doubtless a Bay”? And other historical myths...

Doubtless Bay features in the stories of a number of maritime explorers of the past.

The naming of Doubtless Bay is correctly ascribed to Captain James Cook on HM Bark Endeavour in December 1769 – 256 years next month.

Information and excerpts taken from ‘The Journals of Captain Cook; The voyage of the Endeavour, 1768-1771 Cambridge University Press for the Hakluyt Society

So did Cook say “doubtless a bay” in his journal? Nice story, and he may even have said it to his officers and crew, but no it isn’t in his journal, or in the ship’s log. The journal entry says:

SATURDAY 9th. PM had a gentle breeze at West which in the evening came to south and continued so all night, this by day light in the Morning brought us pretty well in with the land 7 Leagues to the westward of the Cavalle Isles and where lies a deep Bay runing in SWBW and wsw, the bottom of which we could but just see and there the land appear’d to be low and level; the two points which form the entrence lie WNW and ESE 5 Miles from each other. This Bay I have 1769] named Doubtless Bay.¹ The wind not permitting us to look into this Bay we steer’d for the westernmost land we had in sight which bore from us WNW distant 3 Leagues but before we got the length of it it fell calm and continued so untill 10 oClock when a breeze sprung up at West NW and with it we stood off North. While we lay becalm’d several of the Natives came off to the Ship in five Canoes, but were fearfull of venturing along side, after these were gone Six more came off these last came boldly along side and sold fish of different sorts sufficient to give all hands a little.

At Noon the Cavalle Isles bore SEBE distant 8 Leagues and the Entrence of Doubtless Bay SBW distant 3 Leagues, and the nor-west extremity of the land in sight, which we judge to be the Main bore NWBW. Our Latitude by obserⁿ was 34°44’ s.

Cook was indeed sure that it was a bay, because he could clearly see the distant dunes of the Karikari Peninsula isthmus.

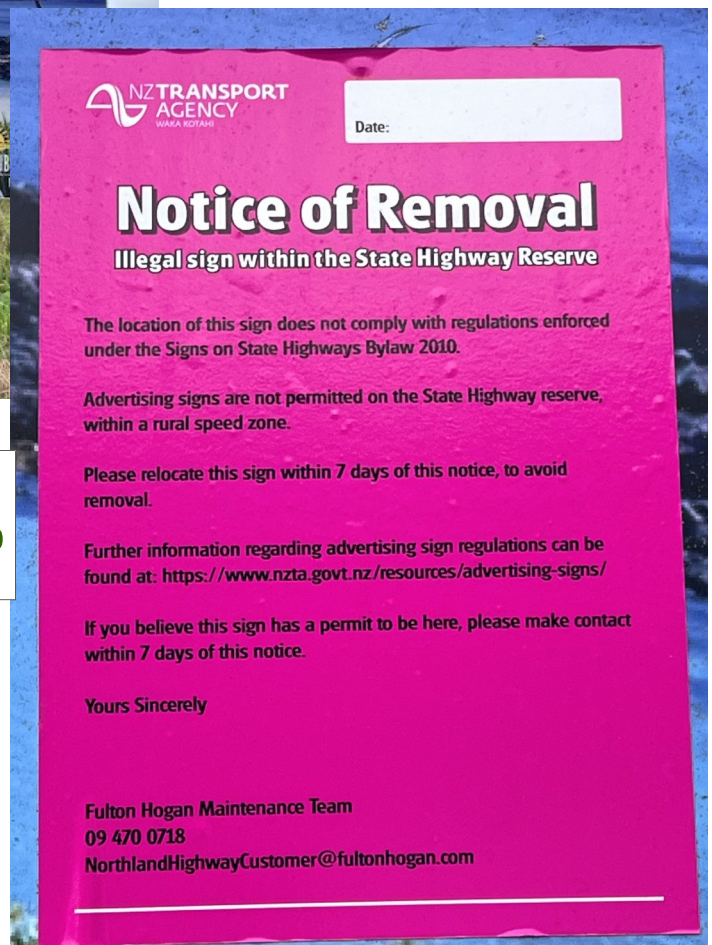

For those who are date minded, the normal convention of the time was to measure dates from noon to noon, which were obviously more readily observable than midnight to midnight. However, whether Cook named Doubtless Bay on the 9th or the 10th of December is less important than noting the other explorer of the day, de Surville, who would visit in more controversial circumstances just 8 days later. Neither Cook nor de Surville had any idea the other was so close by.
